THE 2026 OKC FUNDING ROADMAP

Oklahoma City is moving more than half a billion dollars into redevelopment. This is the short version of where that capital is going — and the levers an investor can actually position for. Use it to spot your opening before the crowd does.

// THE FOUR LEVERS

1 • TIF — TAX INCREMENT FINANCING

$528M

TIF lets the city reinvest the future tax growth of a district back into that district — funding infrastructure, site prep, and redevelopment that makes deals pencil.

HOW TO POSITION

[ Name the active TIF districts + who to contact to get a project reviewed. ]

2 • THE 0% BUILDER LOAN

0%

A zero-interest loan program to get builders moving on priority projects — one of the rare tools that meaningfully changes a project's cost of capital.

WHO QUALIFIES & HOW TO APPLY

[ Eligibility, loan caps, and the application link. ]

3 • HOUSING STABILITY FUND

$215M

Capital aimed at expanding and stabilizing housing supply — a direct signal of where the city wants residential development to happen next.

WHAT IT FUNDS & HOW TO TAP IT

[ Eligible project types + the office/program that administers it. ]

4 • THE BUDGET BUMP & ARENA HALO

$1.1B+

A $133M budget increase plus a $1B arena reshape the map around them — the blocks near major public investment are where private upside concentrates first.

HOW TO POSITION – THE 5-STEP CHECKLIST

- 1 Map the money. Pull the district boundaries for each lever above and mark where they overlap — overlap is opportunity.
- 2 Get in the room early. Public capital is directed by people, not portals. Know who administers each program before you have a deal.
- 3 Pressure-test the deal. Run the numbers with and without the incentive. If it only works with public money, that's a risk, not a plan.
- 4 Line up your team. Title, lender, and counsel who've closed incentive-backed deals — small mistakes get expensive here.
- 5 Move before the announcement. The best entry points close before the press release. Position now, not after.
